About

1. Let's start with a compelling intro that tells us who you are and your job goal. Start by sharing your name and the job you're looking for.

   Hi! I'm Alana Nanz, and I'm looking for a Front End Developer remote position.

2. Now tell us why you like development and/or what led you to your interest in development.

   In previous administrative roles, I've enjoyed creating and maintaining websites through platforms like WordPress and Drupal. This work peaked my curiosity into learning how to make my own website from scratch.

   In my spare time I love to do puzzles; Coding is a lot like building a jigsaw puzzle. You can picture the end result, but first it must be broken down into smaller pieces. It's satisfying each time you connect a piece, but the greatest joy comes when you connect the last piece and see the finished result!

3. Finally, tell us something about yourself that's fun, unique, or relatable (1 sentence should do ya). It doesn't have to be work-related!

   I have a bachelor of arts in music performance and have spent the last 10 years working in arts management.

4. Which photo or professional-looking avatar best represents you? Be sure to include it!

   Need to take a new professional headshot...

Projects

Tell us about a few projects you've completed. Include the name of the project and a brief description. Consult the "Portfolio Projects Completed" section of your Progress Report for a refresher on projects completed at Skillcrush.

Note: You'll narrow this list to 3-5 of your best projects and write out more details about the projects in a future challenge. We recommend selecting at least one project built with React for your portfolio (it's an in-demand skill!). For now, get some ideas out of what you might include.

1. Project: Unplugged Retreat
    a. Brief description: A responsive multi-page website coded with Flexbox.
2. Project: Github Repo Gallery
    a. Brief description: A gallery of repos pulled from my Github profile using Github's API.
3. Project: Guess the Word Game
    a. Brief description: A game built with Javascript where players have 8 attempts to guess the word.
4. Project: Sticky Notes App
    a. Brief description: Greenfield project creating a Sticky Notes App with React w/options to search, delete and create notes.
